INTRODUCTION

Many thanks for signing up to receive the notices of the Global Analysis Programme (GAP). This is the first of the GAP's Briefings, so be patient with us as we fine tune the contents and structure of this monthly email in line with your feedback. Do feel free to reach out to me at Selma.Sutherland@mod.uk for any content, event, or notice suggestions. Further information about the GAP can be found at the end of this document. The views expressed in the Global Analysis Programme in no way represent the official views of the British Army, Ministry of Defence or any comments thereof, but only that of its authors.

LECTURE

The GAP is pleased to invite you to a lecture on the future of ISIS and Syria on Wednesday 7 March 2018 at the Churchill Hall, RMAS. The lecture is open to all MOD and wider HMG military and civilian personnel. The event will feature a talk by leading Syria and ISIS expert Hassan Hassan, who is also co-author of the New York Times best selling book 'ISIS: Inside the Army of Terror'. Kindly RSVP at selma.sutherland@mod.uk

Russian 'Active Measures'

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

John Sipher

John Sipher retired in 2014 after a 28-year career in the CIA's National Clandestine Service, which included serving in Moscow and running the CIA's Russia operations. Sipher served multiple overseas tours, as Chief of Station and Deputy Chief of Station, in Europe, the Balkans, Asia, Southeast Asia and South Asia. He also ran Russian operations at Headquarters. He retired as

Executive Summary

For many in America, Russian interference in the 2016 U.S. election surfaced the term "active measures" for the first time. Europeans were more familiar with the behavior, if not the term. 2016 saw a renewed focus on Russian hybrid and political warfare – interference in elections throughout the west.
